

New York's leading agricultural product is milk, and it leads the nation in the production of cabbage. It is the second largest producer of apples and the third largest grower of grapes and tart cherries in the country.

